ADVANCE DIRECTIVES IN MENTAL HEALTH CARE IN NZ WEBINAR

WEDNESDAY
26TH AUGUST,
7PM - 8PM

A/PROF TONY O'BRIEN

Te Huataki Waiora School of Health, University of Waikato

Tony is a mental health nurse with over 40 years experience in clinical practice, education, research and professional issues. Tony has expertise in mental health assessment, working with people who self harm or are suicidal, and in legal issues related to mental health care. Tony also has an interest in improving the physical and primary care provided to people with mental illness.

HIS TOPIC WILL INCLUDE:

Advance directives are a tool aimed at increasing autonomy in people using mental specialist mental health services. This webinar will outline a research programme which has developed an advance directive instrument and is engaged in further research. The next stage is a Maori-centred study examining Maori perspectives of advance directives. The research team is also considering how advance directives can be incorporated into New Zealand's mental health legislation.
